

The Summer Sex Games

Those other physical contests come only once every four years, but you don't have to wait that long. Stage your own feats of ACROBATICS AND ENDURANCE and she'll award you the gold. by ROBIN HILMANTEL

No question that watching Olympic basketball, boxing, and tennis events can be exciting. But what are you going to do when they're covering badminton and dressage? We suggest getting physical with the lady in your life in a series of underdressed competitions.

"Sexual challenges give women an opportunity to be bolder in the bedroom than they might normally be comfortable with," says sex expert Sadie Allison, Ph.D. "Turning play time into game time gives her permission to unleash her wild side." So let the games begin!

*SOME NAMES HAVE BEEN CHANGED.

Groin pulls can be your friend.

EVENT NO. 1
The 100 Meter Dash

Sprinting to the finish line in bed is way more exciting than doing it on a track. Sarah, 25, the anonymous writer behind the sexy site Abedroomblog.com, partakes in a quickie race with her boyfriend: They like to see how fast he can get her off using only his hands. "He uses his middle finger and curls it upward in quick strokes while applying lots of pressure," Sarah says. "It's magical." The guy's personal best? Nine seconds! "I was so turned on, we had sex immediately afterward—and I came again."

EVENT NO. 2
Floor Exercises

If beating the clock isn't your thing, take a cue from Lindsey, 24. She likes to watch porn with her boyfriend, then imitate certain moves as closely as possible. "The first time we did it, I had him point out a position he thought was supersexy. He picked a scene when the female porn star sat on the couch, had the man stand in front of her, and then started caressing his dick with her tongue like it tasted amazing," Lindsey says. "So as soon as the video was done, I leaned over and started licking my boyfriend and moaning the same way."

EVENT NO. 3
Archery

Make your lady quiver. The only arrow involved in this sport is the one that points to her G-spot. Emily Morse, host of the radio show Sex With Emily and coauthor of the book Hot Sex, plays a game in which she and her partner focus on just one body part a day, going a full week without penetration.

"I'd never had a man spend 30 minutes touching, grabbing, and licking my breasts before," Emily says. "It was the first time I felt like I could orgasm from that alone." And when they finally had full-on sex at the end of the week, it hit the bull's-eye. "That orgasm was explosive."

EVENT NO. 4
Weight Lifting

The game that Carlee, 23, and her boyfriend like to play is more than just a pleasurable event: It's also a good workout. "Both of us are big fitness buffs, so one day we decided to see how many arm curls he could do using me instead of weights," she says. "The next thing you know I was trying to do sit-ups with him inside of me."

Not all exercises are made for this, however. Carlee and her boyfriend found out that doing squats with a woman wrapped around you isn't the greatest idea—he kept dropping her, and one time he fell flat on his butt. They've since added nude yoga to their lineup and have found some great new uses for their weight bench. Get a spotter!

even handcuffs," she says. But that doesn't mean they skip foreplay. "There's a lot of kissing, licking, and even caressing with our faces," she adds. "I love that he pays so much attention to my body, plus seeing how much he's dying to touch me is almost enough to make me come."

EVENT NO. 7
Boxing

Not afraid to get physical, 32-year-old V.I., the anonymous sex blogger at Candydiaries.com, likes to go three rounds with her boyfriend. She challenged him to make her orgasm three times in an hour. "He thought it would be impossible,

"I'd never had a guy spend 30 minutes touching my breasts before. I felt like I could orgasm from that alone."

EVENT NO. 5
The Marathon

Morgan, 21, and her boyfriend are both avid runners. So they've eagerly been looking forward to the Olympic marathon this month, because that's when they'll finally get to find out how many times they can have sex while the event is being televised.

"It's something we've been thinking about doing for a long time now," Morgan says. "My boyfriend thinks we'll only be able to have sex twice. I'm pretty sure we'll be able to double that." The current Olympic marathon record is just over two hours, so don't forget to stop for water breaks!

EVENT NO. 6
Soccer

Don't worry, there's no kicking of balls with spiked shoes involved in this game. Janelle, 28, and her boyfriend like to keep the emphasis on scoring without using their hands. "We'll take turns tying each other's hands together with a handkerchief or sometimes but it worked the first time we tried it," she says. Within 45 minutes he brought her to the finish with girl-on-top, oral, and doggy style. His prize for succeeding was a coupon good for the sexual fantasy of his choice, which he redeemed for some public sex, bending her over his car after dinner one night.

EVENT NO. 8
Wrestling

Freestyle wrestling and sex go hand in hand, but you can make things more exciting by actually playing by the rules. "My boyfriend was a wrestler in college, so he knows the scoring system," Kirsten, 26, says. "We'll both start out completely dressed, and then every time one of us scores from a certain move, like a reversal or a takedown, the other one has to take off an article of clothing. Kirsten usually ends up naked first, "But by then my boyfriend is so distracted it isn't long before he's out of his clothes, too." At which point all the rules go out the door.